

MARILYN STAFFORD FOTOREPORTAGE AWARD FOR WOMEN PHOTOGRAPHERS

CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS 2021

The FotoAward

The Marilyn Stafford FotoReportage Award of £2,000, facilitated by FotoDocument and supported by Nikon, is granted annually to a professional woman photographer towards the completion of a compelling and cohesive documentary photo essay which addresses an important social, environmental, economic or cultural issue, whether local or global. The work should, in part, showcase positive solutions to any issues it raises, in line with the wishes of Marilyn Stafford and the aims of FotoDocument. The Award is reserved solely for documentary photographers working on projects which are intended to make the world a better place and which may be unreported/under-reported.

Women from any stage of their careers are welcome to apply, whether emerging, mid-career or established. They must already have started the photo essay for which they are seeking funding and be able to show work in progress. In addition, they must have already completed at least one other documentary photo essay to demonstrate track record. Entrants must be over 18, they may be any nationality and based anywhere in the world. It is free to submit.

One overall winner will receive the Marilyn Stafford FotoReportage Award of £2,000 towards the completion of their project and one runner up will receive £500. The final work will be featured on FotoDocument's website and publicised via social media. We will endeavour to gain international media coverage, without any guarantees. Shortlisted applicants will have one image profiled on FotoDocument's website and publicised via social media.

INTERNATIONAL PANEL:

Andrea Bruce:	photojournalist, co-owner NOOR photo agency, Nikon ambassador
Donna De Cesare:	photojournalist, associate professor at University of Texas
Nina Emmett:	founding director FotoDocument, documentary photographer
Melanie Friend:	documentary photographer
Neo Ntsoma:	photojournalist, founder Neo Ntsoma Productions

Marilyn Stafford and her daughter honorary judge, Lina Clerke, will join the panel.

ELIGIBILITY FOR THE AWARD:

- This Award is for women documentary photographers / including those who identify as female.
- Submissions are welcomed from emerging, mid-career and established photographers.
- Photographers must be at least 18 years old, there is no upper age limit.
- Postgraduate photography students will be considered.
- Photographers may live anywhere in the world.
- Applicants who have submitted to us before may submit again with the same project if it has significantly developed or with a new project.
- Photographers must have obtained necessary model release permissions for their photographs.
- Applicants must have a valid bank account in the country where they live.

SUBMISSION PROCESS:

Alongside a completed application form, photographers will be required to submit the work in progress for which they are seeking funding as well as one other completed photo essay on any subject, which demonstrates they can convey a coherent and cohesive visual narrative.

Checklist:

- Completed application form.
- A minimum of ten Jpeg photographs (approx 2mb each and 150 dpi) of the current photo essay for which they are seeking funding + project description + captions.
- A minimum of fifteen Jpeg photographs (approx 2mb each and 150 dpi) of a previous finished photo essay documenting a single theme + project description + captions.

The two photo essays must be submitted:

- Via We Transfer – please provide a link, where indicated on the application form OR
- Via a web link which leads directly to a designated slideshow - please do not provide a general website, you need to give a URL address for a specific body of work.

Jpeg files transferred to us must be saved with your name (firstname_surname_01.jpeg etc.) and with complete embedded IPTC information: copyright, caption, date and place. In addition, captions must be clearly displayed on any slideshow if directing to a specific URL or clearly cross-referenced on an accompanying word document attached with the application form.

Only work submitted in one of the ways described above will be considered for selection.

All submissions should be sent to info@fotodocument.org by 5pm, on Monday 24 May 2021.

Applicants will receive confirmation that their application has been received by 5pm, on Wednesday 26 May 2021. If no confirmation has been received by this date, applicants should contact us.

SELECTION CRITERIA:

Photographers will be judged on the following four criteria:

- their track record for completing at least one other documentary photo essay;
- the quality of the work in progress which they want the funding for;
- how the project addresses solutions to the issues it raises;
- their motivation for applying for this FotoAward.

Shortlisted applicants may be interviewed via skype following the selection committee panel meeting. The decision of the judging panel is final.

TERMS OF THE AWARD:

Copyright of the photographs will remain with the selected photographer/s. The photographs must be free from copyright and usage restrictions from third parties. The selected photographer/s will license to FotoDocument and Nikon reproduction rights for an agreed selection of images which make up the final work in any media worldwide, in perpetuity, for the purposes of providing exposure for the photographer, for the body of work created and for the Award itself only. Neither FotoDocument nor Nikon will pass on these reproduction rights to any third parties, without the prior agreement of the photographer. Any usage of the photographs by FotoDocument or Nikon or licensed third parties will be credited to the selected photographer/s with the appropriate copyright symbol.

AWARD TIMELINE:

Monday 8 March 2021:	Call for Submissions opens
Monday 24 May 2021:	Deadline for photographer submissions (5pm)
Wednesday 26 May 2021:	Receipt of applications acknowledged by FotoDocument
Wednesday 9 June 2021:	Shortlist announced
Wednesday 30 June 2021:	FotoAward Winner, Runner Up & Honourable Mentions announced

PREVIOUS WINNERS OF THE FOTOAWARD

FOTOAWARD WINNER 2020

The winner of the 2020 FotoAward is US photographer, Nicky Quamina-Woo, for her photo essay: As The Water Comes, about the displacement of hundreds of families due to rising sea levels in Northern Senegal, and the local solutions being used to tackle this issue.

"I am so excited to be the recipient of the Marilyn Stafford FotoReportage Award 2020! Thank you for believing in the project. We can be so isolated as documentarians, endeavoring to share stories, often independently with no concrete idea if our creative and storytelling efforts will resonate. This award is especially heart-warming, as the judges chose work highlighting climate change in Africa, with its abundant natural resources, which is often overlooked when it comes to environmental issues, even though it suffers the heightened effects of desertification and erosion."

Nicky Quamina-Woo

A child plays on the ruins of a sea wall after the ocean surge, saint louis, Senegal.

© Nicky Quamina-Woo

FOTOAWARD WINNER 2019

The winner of the 2019 FotoAward is Russian photographer, Anna Filipova, for her photo essay: Research At The End Of The World, which focuses on international scientific research taking place in the Arctic region on climate change.

The judges agreed that Filipova's photo essay is of a very high photographic standard, that it approaches this topical and most important of issues from an under-reported perspective and that it has the potential to create impact through exhibiting at UN Climate Summits around the world, at international photography festivals and within global publications.

Arctic Research Station, Svalbard.

A female scientist preparing tools for data gathering for climate research. In the background is Blomstandbreen. In the 1980s, Blomstrandhalvøya (a place situated next to Ny-Ålesund on the 80th parallel North), was still believed to be a peninsula, but due to the retreating of Glacier Blomstandbreen, it became an island within less than a decade.

© Anna Filipova

FOTOAWARD WINNER 2018

The winner of the 2018 FotoAward is Turkish photographer, Özge Sebzeci, for her photo essay: I Am Beautiful – But My Destiny... about the marriage (and sometimes divorce) of underage Syrian refugee children settled within an industrial area of Anatolia.

"Winning this award is important for me in many aspects: it gives me the opportunity to dig deeper and cover different aspects of the issue of child marriages among Syrian refugees here and for this under-reported story to be heard by a broader public. Being mentored by the FotoDocument team and Marilyn Stafford has added new perspectives to the story and my development as a storyteller. I am hoping to use this crucial support in the best way I can and bring together a complete work that makes the audience challenge and reflect."

Özge Sebzeci

Khadija, 15, fled to Turkey when she was 12, was engaged at 13 and married at 14 because her mother had felt under pressure from suitors. Khadija believes her father, who died in Syria, would not have allowed her to marry had he still been alive. Khadija got divorced from her 20-year-old husband, Mohamed, because she says they did not get along.

© Özge Sebzeci

FOTOAWARD WINNER 2017

The winner of the inaugural 2017 FotoAward is British photographer, Rebecca Conway, for her photo essay: Valley of the Shadow based on the treatment of civilian trauma (PTSD) in Indian-controlled Kashmir following three decades of separatist insurgency, conflict and violence.

"I'm extremely honoured to be the first recipient of the Marilyn Stafford FotoReportage Award. I've been able to return to Kashmir to keep documenting the stories of those living in the Kashmir Valley, spending time with families affected by the conflict as I build a deeper picture of what living amid continued violence means for Kashmir's civilians. I've been able to afford a translator and driver, making travel in Kashmir safer. It's also encouraging this story has been recognised because the effects of Kashmir's conflict on mental health is rarely reported. It's incredible to be recognised by an award in Marilyn's name given her story."

Rebecca Conway

A Kashmiri girl walks past graffiti reading, 'We want freedom' during a curfew and shutdown in downtown Srinagar on September 7, 2016.

© Rebecca Conway

Marilyn Stafford

Marilyn Stafford's photography career got off to a remarkable start taking stills of Albert Einstein. Since then, she has accumulated an eclectic body of work, spanning 1948-1980, including further historical figures such as Edith Piaf and Sir Richard Attenborough as well as lesser known Francesca Serio, an illiterate Sicilian peasant woman who brought the mafia to trial for murdering her son; international fashion (50s-70s); children of Parisian slums (1950s); refugees from the Algerian War of Independence (1958); everyday life in Lebanon (1960); Indira Gandhi following the Indo-Pakistani War (1971) and the Adivasi Ghotul Muria and Warli tribes of India (1972-1980).

There are key narratives which permeate Stafford's work: she was a pioneering woman photographer at a time when there were few; she left her native US to work abroad when it was relatively unusual for American women to do so; her work is broad-ranging, representing her need to make a living balanced with her desire to cover issues of international concern. In Paris, she was mentored by Henri Cartier-Bresson who helped Stafford to secure front page of The Observer in 1958 with her moving image of a refugee mother, bringing the violence of the Algerian War of Independence to public attention. In 2020, Stafford was awarded Chairman's Lifetime Achievement Award at the UK Picture Editor's Guild. Stafford's third book, a retrospective on her life's work, Marilyn Stafford – A Life in Photography will be published by Bluecoat Press in June 2021.

"I started this Award in 2017 in order to salute and support the many strong, dedicated, brave and talented women documentary photographers around the world, who through their work are fighting to right the wrongs of our world and to show that change is possible – they have my deepest admiration. In time, the award has gone from strength to strength, with the continuous generous support of FotoDocument and Nikon UK and to my joy it is now in its fifth year! My many thanks and deep appreciation to them and to everyone who has made this possible." Marilyn Stafford www.marilynstaffordphotography.com @marilynstaffordphotography

FotoDocument

FotoDocument is an award-winning arts social enterprise, which brings visibility to positive social and environmental initiatives around the world through the medium of documentary photography. The work is intended to create a sense of active global citizenship by engaging participants and audiences in powerful social or environmental storylines which affect us all.

© Tsvangirayi Mukwazi

FotoDocument's work has been exhibited in a wide range of venues and festivals including Victoria & Albert Museum, House of Commons, Oxo Tower London, London Design Festival, Brent Civic Centre, Brighton Railway Station, Amex Community Football Stadium. Their commissioned photographers include emerging artists as well as prominent names in photography and they have worked in partnership with several national organisations and institutions including Tate Modern, Salusbury World Refugee Centre, Photoworks and London College of Communication.

In addition to its project work, FotoDocument runs photography workshops through its FotoSchool service, targeted at disadvantaged children and young people in the UK. FotoDocument trades through FotoStory, its visual storytelling service as well as through its ethical photography service, FotoAgency.

"We are delighted to facilitate this important award in honour of pioneering photographer, Marilyn Stafford, and all the incredible women documentary photographers in the world who are working tirelessly to tell under-reported visual stories of positive change. As long as there are social and environmental problems in the world – and we know there are many – there are also solutions and we feel that it is particularly important to focus on these in order to bring hope, inspiration and the possibility of a better future. We are very much looking forward to reviewing this year's submissions." Nina Emmett, Director, FotoDocument.

<https://fotodocument.org/fotoaward/> @fotodocument

We look forward to receiving your submission at info@fotodocument.org by 5pm on Monday 24 May 2021